Notes for Dieter Dahm Sr.:
General Notes:

Dieter is listed as Deeder Dahm on the 1850 Census; and as Deater Dahm on the 1860 Census; and as Dieter Dahm on the 1880 Census. His cemetery records reflect Dieter Damm, Sr. John and Dieter were either already married, married in route or married right after entering America. They are listed as head of household on the 1850 census Greene County, Illinois. Their wives and children are also listed.

A note of interest regarding the Census:

Names were spelled the way they sounded to the census taker. The German accent obviously created problems for some. On the 1850 census, Dieter's name is spelled "Deeder". His wife is listed as Josephine and her name actually was "Jacobena"

Cemetery records in Greene County, Illinois clear up these questions. I suspect the original German version of the surname was "Damm"[Loftis.FTW]

Notes for Elias Damm:

General Notes:

The family has changed the spelling of the name over the years. Some took the "Damm" spelling; some took the "Daum" spelling; and some may have kept the "Dahm" spelling. I have verbal family reports that Elias's generation began using "Daum" around 1900. My grandfather's official records reflect "Daum", but he preferred the "Damm" spelling. Apparently they held a family meeting and took a vote regarding the spelling of the name. Obviously, Elias kept the "Damm" spelling. [Loftis.FTW]
